At Tarawera you can walk to the hot springs, which are above the Waipunga River. You might also want to stop at the Waiarua Falls lookout to view the twin waterfalls.

Napier is the largest city in the Hawke's Bay, whose port handles the province's huge volumes of produce spreads around the wedge of Bluff Hill, sometimes still referred to as "Scinde Island." Napier was almost completely surrounded by water before the severe 1931 earthquake flattened the city but uplifted vast areas of the surrounding seabed. As a result of the disaster, the city was almost completely rebuilt during the 1930's giving it an Art Deco style of architecture unique to a New Zealand city.
